

Cancel Culture Revealed

By Dean L. Gano; June, 2021

The other night I was watching the news and some guy was complaining that Google had canceled articles he has written about COVID-19 on his website, so I wondered if they were doing that to the articles that a friend and I have written. The first paper we wrote on this subject in September 2020 is titled "COVID-19 and Real Science". Because our paper provides the truth about COVID-19, based on 500 - 600 hours of research and a detailed causal analysis with 70 technical references to support the findings, it does not follow the main stream media lies and might be susceptible to the cancel culture so prevalent today.

So, I did a little experiment by searching for this title on Google. Duh, guess what? It never shows up; or at least in the first 100 hits. If I use "DuckDuckGo," which is an honest search engine that doesn't track you or feed you lies, our paper comes up as the second hit. Now, why would that be? It's called cancel culture and it is destroying America. Try it yourself, it's really easy. Simply open a new page in your browser window and click on the little spy glass at the beginning of the search text window and a drop-down menu of different search engines will appear. Like this:

Select any search engine except Google and you will find that "COVID-19 and Real Science", comes up as the second hit after an advertisement, so it is actually the first hit. But, if you use Google, you will not find our paper, which is located on our website at www.fact-checked.org.

You will find an abstract of it on the Biomed site, but not the paper because after we submitted it to them for publication, they rejected it because we exposed how the scientific community has been corrupted and they couldn't publish that fact.

Please note, this is not about our paper being rejected, because we know from this and other journal's reply that they did not like it because it told the truth about how the politicians have hijacked this problem to gain power, not the real science it contained that relied on over 50 peer reviewed PubMed scientific papers. In fact, one of the journals we submitted it to, said they couldn't publish it because it had too many scientific references.

And it's not about COVID-19 or any other subject. The problem here is the fact that Google is censoring your searches to make sure you get their interpretation of the world as defined by the powerful elite group to which they belong. More on them later.

For details, please take the time to read our paper at www.fact-checked.org. If you don't have the time, here is a summary of how some of this corruption works:

Unfortunately, scientists need money to expand human knowledge and that can cause problems, the biggest of which is the common belief among scientists that consensus on the given subject is the goal. The thinking being that, if enough of us agree on something by performing all kinds of different experiments to prove it (using lots of government money), it must be right; and a huge Groupthink is created. This is exacerbated by the fact that one of the criteria for giving grant money is to see how many articles have been published on that particular subject. If an idea is new or challenges conventional wisdom the scientist is less likely to be awarded the grant money and must go elsewhere or lose their job. So, ignorance is systematically perpetuated and our scientific knowledge is stifled by the very system designed to gain more knowledge.

Additionally, politicians have hijacked the scientific community to influence the actions, beliefs, or behavior of voters as a way of gaining power. They seek to convince the majority of voters of their righteousness by showing what great problem-solvers they are. If there isn't a problem, they create one, like the "Man-Caused Climate Change" hoax. The citizens, who have never been taught the principles of causation and the need for evidenced-based causal relationships, simply listen for the best narrative and swallow it.

In both these activities, government and politicians, the incentive to challenge conventional wisdom is removed and the purpose of 'real science' is now focused on consensus and political narratives – the total opposite of pure science, which is to forever question everything and everyone.

Since Google is an operational arm of the elite power players, they are obligated to support their brethren by propagating the official narrative of these psychopathic scumbags. And since over 90% of us sheeple use Google, most people have no idea they are being manipulated. So, please forgive them, for they know not what they do.

From Nietzsche's Beyond Good and Evil, we learn that other animals do not think about death like humans do. In fact, humans worry so much about it they seek to live comfortably forever by going to heaven. The Democratic Socialist's purpose in life is to relieve man from the suffering of life by giving them everything and if you take this to its endpoint and all suffering is removed; i.e. no more worries about death, mankind will have reverted to the animal view of the world and that is exactly what these psychopaths want – a mindless lapdog!

To further understand how bad Google is for you, I encourage you to do a search on some topic you are knowledgeable about or just some random topic like Barack Obama Lies both on Google and DuckDuckGo.

If we do this search on Google, you get these top ten hits:

1. Barrack Obama was our 44th president, born in 1961 in Hawaii, and was such a nice man.
2. A Truth-O-Meter rating by PolitiFact rates him a pretty honest guy.
3. FactCheck.org says that Biden is a bigger liar than Obama.
4. A book at Amazon titled: You Lie! By Jack Cashill.
5. Another Amazon book: Barack Obama & Larry Sinclair, Coke, Sex, Lies & Murder.
6. An article by The Hill about how wrong the NY Times is regarding presidential lies.
7. Donald Trump spread racist lies about Barack Obama.
8. Trump incited violence at Capital.
9. 12 False Claims Trump has made about Obama.
10. Who Lied More During Their First Hundred Days: Biden, Trump or Obama?

Analysis:

As you assess these top 10 hits, you find the first two hits are from PolitiFact with a nice biography of President Obama and a link to his website along with a short list of his lies. They also give him a nice ranking on their Truth-O-Meter. But, upon further research we find that PolitiFact is a left-wing rag that takes statements from politicians they don't like out of context all the time. It also praises the politicians they do like, so they are anything but real fact checkers. They have no idea what defines reality, but are great at obfuscation and lies.

The third hit is for Factcheck.org, which is very similar to PolitiFact in its left-wing leanings. For example, they say man-caused climate change is a fact because 97% of all climate scientists say so, which in itself is a total lie, because the actual number is about 13.8%. Again, they have no concept of what defines reality but are great at obfuscation and innuendo. This link provides a bunch of stories about Obama, but also includes a bunch of stories about President Trump. Now, remember your search was about Obama Lies, not President Trump, but that doesn't matter to these guys. Google wants to muddy the water with negative information about someone else that you were not looking for.

The next two hits are for books on Amazon about Obama's lies, thus directing a little revenue to one of their elite power player friends.

The next hit is an article by The Hill, a conservative publisher from Hillsdale College that reports how the New York Times spreads lies about President Trump.

By Dean L. Gano; June, 2021

The next four hits are mainstream media reports about how President Trump is such a big liar. Not what you were searching for, but exactly the opposite.

In summary, the Google search was clearly biased and focused on bad mouthing President Trump rather than providing you an honest internet search for the topic of President Obama Lies.

But, the only way we can know if this Google search was biased is to get an honest search of the same subject, so let's see what DuckDuckGo provides:

1. Barack Obama's ten Worst lies.
2. Barack Obama's 50 lies by Snopes.com.
3. The Ten Biggest Lies Obama Told Everyone
4. An article by The Hill about how wrong the NY Times is regarding presidential lies. Same hit as Google hit #6.
5. Did Donald Trump or Barack Obama Tell More Lies?
6. Pinocchio Obama's Top 20 presidential lies.
7. Obama's Biggest Whoppers by the Washington Post Fact-Checker.
8. Black History Website book review of Barack Obama & Larry Sinclair, Coke, Sex, Lies & Murder.
9. Obama's 29 scandals and the media's campaign to hide them.
10. Amazon Books: Barack Obama & Larry Sinclair, Coke, Sex, Lies & Murder. Same hit as Google hit #5.

Analysis:

As you can see, the first ten hits found by DuckDuckGo are all about Barack Obama Lies, just like what you searched on. And when you compare these hits with those found using ecosia.org you find that nine of the top ten hits are identical. Also, when you check the search on Bing, six of the top ten are the same. And the Yahoo search finds five are the same, but almost all of these other site's hits are about Obama's lies and only a few hits on Bing and Yahoo deviate by bringing up President Trump as a diversion tactic.

So, given this huge deviation, the big question becomes why is Google so different than the other search engines? Why are all but two hits, the Amazon books, not focused on Obama's lies, but purposefully include comments about Trump or Biden. This is called obfuscation: the action of making something obscure, unclear, or unintelligible. Why? Part of the answer is found in a documentary on Netflix titled: The Social Dilemma which provides some scary realities of how they are controlling our thinking. This is a must-watch documentary and in it you will learn how the people who designed all the social media software like Facebook and Twitter, and search engines like Google created a brilliant sales model that includes addiction in the design. It subconsciously controls our minds and is capable of implanting ideas we didn't intend to have. They do this by selling certainty and use groupthink to validate the ideas or actions they want you to have and do.

It is so bad that when you google a topic, like Climate Change, depending on where you live or how your profile defines you, it will give you the answer you want. For example, if you live in San Francisco and google 'climate change' you will get links that talk about man-caused climate change and how bad it is. But, if you live in Montana or are an effective thinker who has actually done real scientific research on the subject, you will be given links that say it is a hoax, which it is. The more you click and watch, the more they change the model to better predict your future actions and subtly infuse your mind with what they want to promote or sell you. The algorithms that do the manipulation are self-learning, so even the people who wrote the code don't know what the algorithm is doing. Consequently, there are no moral decisions being made about what they are doing. Effective thinking requires that we have a shared understanding of reality and when the programmers don't even know or care what truth is, mindless thinking becomes common place, which helps explain the idiocy we see in our world today.

For more details on this documentary and other causes of our de-evolution read Wakeup Sheeple and The De-Evolution of Mankind at www.fact-checked.org.

Fact Checking Scam

So, one might think that it's just a Search Engine Bias (SEB) problem, but it's not. Like everything else, if you dig into the details, you find more dirt.

What is SEB? From Wikipedia, we learn: "Although search engines are programmed to rank websites based on some combination of their popularity and relevancy, empirical studies indicate various political, economic, and social biases in the information they provide and the underlying assumptions about the technology. These biases can be a direct result of economic and commercial processes (e.g., companies that advertise with a search engine can become also more popular in its organic search results), and political processes (e.g., the removal of search results to comply with local laws). For example, Google will not surface certain neo-Nazi websites in France and Germany, where Holocaust denial is illegal."

So, from Wikipedia, we learn that Google has the programing ability to censor what it finds, which further supports my findings listed above.

But it's even worse, they not only censor your searches, they block websites they don't agree with. Websites like ours at www.fact-checked.org. Sure, if you search for our website, you will find it in a Google search, but if you search for the title of any of the 30+ papers published on our website, they will not show up. But if you search for those same titles on the other search engines all our papers show up. So, it appears that Google has chosen to silence us. Freedom of speech has been stolen from citizens of the United States of America by a billion-dollar company, who at this time has the right to edit its content, but in doing so treads on the single greatest principle that underlies what makes America Great. And if you dig a little deeper you find that the Google conglomerate known as Alphabet Inc., has a strategic collaboration deal with four Big Pharma companies and six major health systems, so they need to protect the elite group's narrative. They can't let it be known that the COVID-19 pandemic could have been prevented by simply giving everyone Zinc and common Vitamins. Not when they can make billions of dollars selling their drugs and experimental vaccines. Google is a key player in this fraud, and if left unchecked they will destroy civilization as we know it today!

But it gets worse. When you ask why isn't there some standard for fact checking that journalist or fact checking organizations subscribe to? You find that there is one and it's called the IFCN; International Fact-Checking Network. So maybe there is hope? They provide five principles that must be followed in order to be a member of this elite group. Unfortunately, none of these principles include evidenced-based causal analysis and this organization is anything but neutral. It is operated by Poynter Institute – the same people who publish the left leaning PolitiFact publication we discussed earlier. So, what first appears to be a breath of honesty in journalism turns out to be just another scam. Upon a closer look, we have is an organization claiming to be honest and promoting “no conflict-of-interest fact checking” being run by one of the biggest fake news publications in journalism – WOW!

When you look at the certification analysis performed by the IFCN on PolitiFact, you find self-serving rhetoric like this from PolitiFact: “Every fact-check is different, but generally speaking, our reporting process includes the following: a review of what other fact-checkers have found previously; a thorough Google search; a search of online databases; consultation with a variety of experts; a review of publications and a final overall review of available evidence.”

Yep, you read that right, they do a “Google search” to make sure their facts are true or not. Since we now know that Google is the last place you should look for the truth, PolitiFact is anything but reliable.

As a second way of validating that fact, I looked at PolitiFact to see what they said about the use of Hydroxychloroquine to treat COVID-19. Here's a summary of what they said:

“Hydroxychloroquine, which is an immunosuppressive and anti-parasitic drug used to treat autoimmune diseases such as lupus and rheumatoid arthritis, in addition to malaria, carries a particular risk for people with heart problems, plus other possible side effects.”

Had they done a simple internet search using DuckDuckGo instead of Google, they would have found that it is safer than Aspirin. A study at Oxford University of 956,000 people from all over the world showed no deleterious effects when recommended doses are used.

They also say this: “In March 2020, as Trump touted hydroxychloroquine (HCQ), the U.S. Food and Drug Administration authorized emergency use of hydroxychloroquine for certain hospitalized COVID-19 patients. But the FDA revoked its authorization less than three months later, after determining "it is no longer reasonable" to believe that it may be effective in treating COVID-19, "nor is it reasonable to believe that the known and potential benefits of these products outweigh their known and potential risks."

So, instead of delving into the causal relationships of how HCQ works on the immune system, they rely on a government agency for their fact checking. A Government Agency like the one run by Dr. Fauci at NIH who has repeatedly lied to us. No detailed causal analysis, no evidenced-based causes, no real fact checking because they have never been taught what defines reality and simply don't know how to, OR as the evidence suggest, they are trying to promote a certain agenda like: "Orange Man Bad!"

Regarding the truth about HCQ; if it had been adopted as the go to treatment for COVID-19 infections, at least 500,000 people would not have died in the United States. For the real facts on how HCQ and other agents work to stop the virus, read our paper. "COVID-19 and Real Science".

Not Alone:

This whole cancel culture movement is being driven by a bunch of psychopathic CEO's of Big Tech, Main Stream Media, and many politicians. Twitter cancelled the President of the United States, Amazon just cancelled America's Front Line Doctors. Mike Lindell, Aunt Jemima, Uncle Ben, and even Disney have also been cancelled because some psychopath in a position to censor free speech has chosen to destroy the foundation of America's greatness – free speech!

Conclusion:

When you learn that Alphabet Inc., who owns Google, who owns YouTube, which is played on Amazon servers, you begin to see how these monopolies are working together to control the narratives the sheeple consume. The lesson and moral of this story is that Big Tech in the name of Goggle, Amazon, YouTube, Facebook, Twitter, and others are censoring our right to free speech, so stop supporting them if you want the truth. To do otherwise is to be a Sheeple.
